Established in 1787 and listed on the National Registry of Historic places, Destrehan Plantation remains the oldest documented plantation home in the lower Mississippi Valley.  The plantation served as a home to Marie Celeste Robin de Logny and her husband Jean Noel Destrehan, the most successful sugar producer in St. Charles Parish and one of the driving forces in Louisiana Statehood.  The plantation exhibits an original document signed by President Thomas Jefferson and Secretary of State James Madison appointing Jean Noel to the Orleans Territorial Council responsible for creating Louisiana’s Civil Law of government. Destination Plantation was the site where one of the three trials took place following the 1811 Slave Revolt, one of the largest slave revolts in the U.S. history led by Charles Deslondes.

Baby supplies are 2nd priority. Common household goods help troops, too.
